Every year a large group of underprivileged youngsters leave the school early with inadequate qualifications.

They risk being lost to the labour market and become socially excluded.

Second chance education works to protect these young people from exclusion.

It provides dropouts with needed skills and teaches them to regain belief in themselves, in education and in work.

A network of Second-Chance Education supporters and providers
The European Association for Cities, Institutions and Second Chance Schools is an international network organization in the field of teaching or enabling young people with lack of skills or qualifications to successfully gain access to education programmes or to the labour market.

Office: bert.pelzer@euricon.eu

EXCHANGES AND TRANSFER OF EXPERIENCE
A key activity of the network is the recurring Youth Event where students meet youngsters from other countries, have fun, share experiences and also discuss important issues.

Another activity are teachers meetings, where teachers train other teachers, discuss Second Chance Educational Training Programs and other issues, to improve the training in second chance education.

In addition, there are continuous exchanges and project activities between members, such as internships for young people in other countries or projects on developing and/or implementing new methods for the target group.

SUPPORT
E2C-Europe works to improve the quality of Second Chance Schools to European standards through a process of quality assurance and standardization of its membership. The goal is to strengthen the individual school’s position and increase the chance of benefitting from local and regional subsidies.

INFLUENCE
The network aims to maintain and enlarge European focus on Second Chance initiatives. It works to influence social policy by opening dialogue with policy makers, decision makers, local authorities and all actors in the field of social exclusion.

AIMS
The network organization E2C-Europe works to support, develop and promote Second Chance Education across Europe.

The main aims of the association are to organize exchange and promote the European concept of Second Chance Schools in general.

Being an E2C member provides you with all the knowledge and experience that is joined with the E2C network, about all kinds of activities and issues in the field of Second Chance Education.
